DEPARTMENT OF INDUSTRIES AND COMMERCE.

Development of Tobacco Cultivation in Mysore State during the calender year 1937.

(G. O. No. D. 5901-3—A. & E. 156-36-3, dated the 4th March 1937.)

The following extract from the above G. O. regarding the Tobacco Aided Barns Scheme, is hereby published for general information of the public. Any extra information required may be obtained from the Director of Industries and Commerce in Mysore, Bangalore.

3. The operations of the scheme during the last two years have shown that Virginian tobacco can be successfully grown in certain parts of the State and that its curing and sale, if properly organised, can be managed at profit. Government, therefore, consider it necessary that the operations should be further extended in the areas in which they were undertaken last year and also tried in one or two new areas.

4. At the same time, Government feel that the original object with which the scheme was started, viz., that of interesting the agriculturists in the cultivation and curing of tobacco on their own account should be kept in view and an attempt made to induce raiyats in the above areas to start the work as a private enterprise with the assistance of Government.

It has been found by experience that a unit of two barns with tobacco cultivated on about 50 acres forms the smallest economical unit and the raiyats that come forward to erect one unit of two barns and undertake the curing and sale on their own account may, during the first two years, be given the following facilities :—

(a) Government will give the design of the barns and supervise the construction free of cost.

(b) Government will advance half the cost of the barns and appliances not exceeding Rs. 1,500 each on the security of the barn, etc., and recover the amount in 5 annual instalments with interest at 6 per cent. The rules for the grant of taccavi loans will be followed as far as possible.

(c) They will supply seedlings at cost price to the aided curer or raiyats selected by him to the extent of 25 acres a barn. Arrangements will be made to advise the raiyats as regards the cultivation.

(d) They will give the necessary technical help in the curing, grading and sale of the leaves, the actual charges incurred being recovered from the aided curer either in cash or from the sale proceeds.

In order to ensure satisfactory supervision, the establishmeni of aided barns in the vicinity of the Departmental centres should as far as possible be encouraged.

To

All Officers entitled to obtain the supply of stationery articles from the Government Stationery Depot, Bangalore.

The undersigned has the honor to state that although Typewriter ribbons are supplied to all offices in accordance with the allocation of different makes furnished in the Standing Lists of the offices concerned, requisitions are being frequently received from many offices for the exchange of Typewriter ribbons by ribbons of other makes. Such exchanges are being made to suit the convenience of officers although it entails unnecessary work on the Stationery Depot. It is noticed that in many cases exchanges are asked for long after the supply was made by the Stationery Depot and new ribbons are required to be supplied in lieu of old ribbons which have been kept in stock by the receiving offices for long periods and have become useless.

With a view to avoid unnecessary work in the Stationery Depot as well as inconvenience to the receiving offices, it is requested that all the receiving offices may kindly intimate to the Stationery Depot at their earliest convenience the make and kind of Typewriters in use in their offices so that changes if necessary may be made in the Standing List of the offices concerned and ribbons suited to the machines in use may be supplied. If any of the Typewriters in use in any office are changed, intimation may be kindly given to the Stationery Depot immediately so that necessary changes may be made in the Standing List.

(i) THEOREMS IN PLANE GEOMETRY.

1. The rectangle contained by the diagonals of a cyclic quadrilateral is equal to the sum of the rectangles contained by its opposite sides.

2. The perpendiculars from the vertices of a triangle on the opposite sides meet in a point called the orthocentre, and the distance of each vertex from the orthocentre is twice the perpendicular distance of the circumcentre from the side opposite the vertex.

3. The three medians of a triangle meet in a point and this point is a point of trisection of each median and also of the line joining the circumcentre to the orthocentre.

4. The circle through the middle point of the sides of a triangle passes also through the feet of the perpendiculars of the triangle and through the middle points of the three straight lines joining the orthocentre to the vertices of the triangle.

5. If a perpendicular drawn from the vertex of a triangle is produced to meet the circumcircle, the distance of this point of intersection from the base is equal to the distance of the orthocentre of the triangle from the base.

6. The feet of the perpendiculars drawn on the sides of a triangle from any point on the circumcircle of the triangle are collinear.

7. Geometrical theorems corresponding to the following identities:—

$$K(a+b+c\ldots)=Ka+Kb+Kc\ldots\ldots$$
$$(a\pm b)^2=a^2\pm 2ab+b^2.$$
$$a^2-b^2=(a+b)(a-b).$$
$$(a+b)^2-(a-b)^2=4ab.$$
$$(a+b)^2+(a-b)^2=2(a^2+b^2).$$

8. The square on a side of a triangle is greater than, equal to or less than, the sum of the squares on the other two sides, according as the angle contained by these two sides is obtuse, right, or acute. The difference in the cose of inequality is twice the rectangle contained by one of the two sides and the projection of it on the other.

9. If D is a point in the side BC of a triangle such that

$$BD=\frac{1}{n}BC,$$

$$\text{then } (n-1)AB^2+AC^2=n.\ AD^2+(1-\tfrac{1}{n})BC^2.$$

10. If two chords of a circle cut one another, the rectangle contained by the segments of the one is equal to the rectangle contained by the segments of the other; and conversely, if two straight lines cut one another so that the rectangle contained by the segments of the one if equal to the rectangle contained by the segments of the other, the four extremities of the straight lines are concyclic.

11. If from a point without a circle a secant and a tangent are drawn to the circle, the rectangle contained by the whole secant and its segment external to the circle is equal to to the square on the tangent.

12. If from any point without a circle two straight lines are drawn one of which cuts the circle and the other meets it, and if the rectangle contained by the whole secant and its parts external to the circle equals the square on the line which meets the circle, this line is a tangent to the circle.

13. Definition and elementary theorems connecting antecedents and consequents.

14. A given straight line can be divided internally or externally in a given ratio at one and only one point.

15. A straight line drawn parallel to one side of a triangle cuts the other two sides produced (if necessary) proportionally; and the converse.

16. If the vertical angle of a triangle is bisected internally or externally, the bisector divides the base internally or externally into segments which have the same ratio as the other sides of the triangle; and the converse.

17. In equal circles, angles whether at the centres or at the circumferences, have the same ratio as the arcs on which they stand.

18. Triangles and parallelograms having equal altitudes are as their bases.

21. Two triangles are similar, if the sides of the one are respectively parallel or perpendicular to the sides of the other.

22. If two triangles have two sides of the one proportional to two sides of the other and an angle in each opposite to one corresponding pair of these sides equal, the angles opposite to the other pair are either equal or supplementary.

23. If from the right angle A of a right-angled triangle ABC, AD is drawn perpendicular to BC, then (i) AD is the mean proportional between BD and DC; (ii) BA is the mean proportional between BD and BC; (iii) CA is the mean proportional between CD and CB.

24. If two triangles are similar, their corresponding lines (such as medians, altitudes, inradii, circumradii, etc.) are proportional.

25. If two triangles have one angle of the one equal to one angle of the other, their areas are proportional to the rectangles contained by the sides about these equal angles. Similarly for parallelograms having one angle of the one equal to one angle of the other.

26. Similar triangles are to one another as the squares on their corresponding sides.

27. Two similar polygons can be divided into the same number of similar triangles similarly placed; and the converse.

28. The perimeters of two similar polygons are to each other as their corresponding sides and their areas are proportional to the squares on corresponding sides.

29. In a right-angled triangle, any rectilineal figure described on the hypotenuse is equal to the sum of the similar and similarly described figures on the other two sides.

30. If four straight lines are proportional and a pair of similar rectilineal figures are similarly described on the first and the second and also a pair of similar rectilineal figures are similarly described on the third and the fourth, the figures are proportional.

31. If the vertical angle of a triangle is bisected internally by a straight line which cuts the base, the rectangle contained by the sides of the triangle equals the rectangle contained by the segments of the base together with the square on the straight line which bisects the angle.

32. If from the verticle angle of a triangle a straight line is drawn perpendicular to the base, the rectangle contained by the sides of the triangle equals the rectangle contained by the perpendicular and the diameter of its circumcircle.

4. Two straight lines perpendicular to the same plane are parallel; and the converse.

5. If two parallel planes are cut by a third plane, the lines of intersection are parallel.

6. If two straight lines are cut by parallel planes, they are cut proportionally.

7. If two intersecting planes are both perpendicular to a third plane, the common section of the first two is perpendicular to the third plane.

8. A straight line can be drawn perpendicular to each of two straight lines in space which do not intersect and are not parallel, and this straight line is the shortest distance between them.

(i) THEOREMS IN PLANE GEOMETRY.

1. The rectangle contained by the diagonals of a cyclic quadrilateral is equal to the sum of the rectangles contained by its opposite sides.

2. The perpendiculars from the vertices of a triangle on the opposite sides meet in a point called the orthocentre, and the distance of each vertex from the orthocentre is twice the perpendicular distance of the circumcentre from the side opposite the vertex.

3. The three medians of a triangle meet in a point and this point is a point of trisection of each median and also of the line joining the circumcentre to the orthocentre.

4. The circle through the middle point of the sides of a triangle passes also through the feet of the perpendiculars of the triangle and through the middle points of the three straight lines joining the orthocentre to the vertices of the triangle.

5. If a perpendicular drawn from the vertex of a triangle is produced to meet the circumcircle, the distance of this point of intersection from the base is equal to the distance of the orthocentre of the triangle from the base.

6. The feet of the perpendiculars drawn on the sides of a triangle from any point on the circumcircle of the triangle are collinear.

7. Geometrical theorems corresponding to the following identities:—

$$K(a+b+c\ldots) = Ka + Kb + Kc\ldots\ldots$$
$$(a \pm b)^2 = a^2 \pm 2ab + b^2.$$
$$a^2 - b^2 = (a+b)(a-b).$$
$$(a+b)^2 - (a-b)^2 = 4ab.$$
$$(a+b)^2 + (a-b)^2 = 2(a^2+b^2).$$

8. The square on a side of a triangle is greater than, equal to or less than, the sum of the squares on the other two sides, according as the angle contained by these two sides is obtuse, right, or acute. The difference in the cose of inequality is twice the rectangle contained by one of the two sides and the projection of it on the other.

9. If D is a point in the side BC of a triangle such that

$$BD = \frac{1}{n} BC,$$

then $(n-1)\,AB^2 + AC^2 = n.\,AD^2 + (1-\frac{1}{n})\,BC^2.$

10. If two chords of a circle cut one another, the rectangle contained by the segments of the one is equal to the rectangle contained by the segments of the other; and conversely, if two straight lines cut one another so that the rectangle contained by the segments of the one if equal to the rectangle contained by the segments of the other, the four extremities of the straight lines are concyclic.

11. If from a point without a circle a secant and a tangent are drawn to the circle, the rectangle contained by the whole secant and its segment external to the circle is equal to to the square on the tangent.

12. If from any point without a circle two straight lines are drawn one of which cuts the circle and the other meets it, and if the rectangle contained by the whole secant and its parts external to the circle equals the square on the line which meets the circle, this line is a tangent to the circle.

13. Definition and elementary theorems connecting antecedents and consequents.

14. A given straight line can be divided internally or externally in a given ratio at one and only one point.

15. A straight line drawn parallel to one side of a triangle cuts the other two sides produced (if necessary) proportionally; and the converse.

16. If the vertical angle of a triangle is bisected internally or externally, the bisector divides the base internally or externally into segments which have the same ratio as the other sides of the triangle; and the converse.

17. In equal circles, angles whether at the centres or at the circumferences, have the same ratio as the arcs on which they stand.

18. Triangles and parallelograms having equal altitudes are as their bases.

19. If two triangles are equiangular, their corresponding sides are proportional; and the converse.

20. If two triangles have one angles of the one equal to one angle of the other and the sides about the equal angles proportional, the triangles are similar.

21. Two triangles are similar, if the sides of the one are respectively parallel or perpendicular to the sides of the other.

22. If two triangles have two sides of the one proportional to two sides of the other and an angle in each opposite to one corresponding pair of these sides equal, the angles opposite to the other pair are either equal or supplementary.

23. If from the right angle A of a right-angled triangle ABC, AD is drawn perpendicular to BC, then (i) AD is the mean proportional between BD and DC; (ii) BA is the mean proportional between BD and BC; (iii) CA is the mean proportional between CD and CB.

24. If two triangles are similar, their corresponding lines (such as medians, altitudes, inradii, circumradii, etc.) are proportional.

25. If two triangles have one angle of the one equal to one angle of the other, their areas are proportional to the rectangles contained by the sides about these equal angles. Similarly for parallelograms having one angle of the one equal to ene angle of the other.

26. Similar triangles are to one another as the squares on their corresponding sides.

27. Two similar polygons can be divided into the same number of similar triangles similarly placed; and the converse.

28. The perimeters of two similar polygons are to each other as their corresponding sides and their areas are proportional to the squares on corresponding sides.

29. In a right-angled triangle, any rectilineal figure described on the hypotenuse is equal to the sum of the similar and similarly described figures on the other two sides.

30. If four straight lines are proportional and a pair of similar rectilineal figures are similarly described on the first and the second and also a pair of similar rectilineal figures are similarly described on the third and the fourth, the figures are proportional.

31. If the vertical angle of a triangle is bisected internally by a straight line which cuts the base, the rectangle contained by the sides of the triangle equals the rectangle contained by the segments of the base together with the square on the straight line which bisects the angle.

32. If from the verticle angle of a triangle a straight line is drawn perpendicular to the base, the rectangle contained by the sides of the triangle equals the rectangle contained by the perpendicular and the diameter of its circumcircle.

(ii) SOLID GEOMETRY.

1. Any two straight lines which intersect each other, or are parallel, lie in a plane.

2. If a straight line is perpendicular to each of two intersecting straight lines at their point of intersection, it is perpendicular to the plane containing them.

3. If a straight line is perpendicular to each of three concurrent straight lines at their point of intersection, the three straight lines are in one plane.

4. Two straight lines perpendicular to the same plane are parallel; and the converse.

5. If two parallel planes are cut by a third plane, the lines of intersection are parallel.

6. If two straight lines are cut by parallel planes, they are cut proportionally.

7. If two intersecting planes are both perpendicular to a third plane, the common section of the first two is perpendicular to the third plane.

8. A straight line can be drawn perpendicular to each of two straight lines in space which do not intersect and are not parallel, and this straight line is the shortest distance between them.

9. If a solid angle is contained by three plane angles, any two of them are together greater than the third.
